

با برگزاری جشن چهارشنبه سوری به استقبال سال جدید خورشیدی می رویم

Chahar-Shanbeh-Soori

A part of Noe-Rooz Festival

Join us to celebrate one of the Most ancient festivals on earth

On the eve before the last Wednesday (Char-Shanbeh) of the year, people build bonfires over which they jump to “cast off” their sorrows and worries. Children chant to the fire “My paleness to you and your redness (Soor) to me”. This is a symbolic respect to the fire that helps them to pass through harsh winter with short grey daylights and long freezing nights and fight with stingy dark Ahriman (Evil who is the symbol of darkness and misery). As a result of this fight the generous Sun spreads its energy during spring and with the help of water, plants are reborn. The tradition respects fire as a symbol of the Sun’s generosity, which revives the nature and provides energy for continuation of life on earth.
